The Lede

What appeared on The Press' radar today.

- ▶ There are 5,712 contingent members using beds on campus. If you put them side-by-side they would stretch to more than 8 miles long.
- ▶ There are approximately 876 items in the trading post complex, and some have already SOLD OUT. Better hurry if you want to get your NOAC toothpick holder!
- ▶ A NOAC toothpick holder can hold 377 toothpicks – so go ahead and eat that corn on the cob, you'll be prepared.
- ▶ The Central Region's noisiest bus ride was taken by Shawnee Lodge and Anpetu-we Lodge, with 125 participants on that bus. My ears are still ringing!
- ▶ Mikanakwa Lodge from Texas showed that "bigger is better" with the largest contingent in the Southern Region. Don't mess with Texas, indeed.

WHAT WAS THE MOST INTERESTING THING YOU DID ON YOUR WAY TO NOAC THIS YEAR?

SCOTT PECK JR.

TIMUQUAN LODGE, ST. PETERSBURG, FL

"Riding the roller coasters at Cedar Point was a lot of fun. We frequented deer at Camp Miakonda, near Toledo, Ohio. We don't see deer in Florida, so it was an experience."

RAYMOND CRUZ

TSCHITANI LODGE, BERLIN, CT

"Well we took the train. No person in our lodge had done that before. We sat with people who were both Eagle Scouts and in OA and shared stories."

BRANDON YEAGER

SANTEE LODGE, DALZELL, SC

"My lodge stopped in Marietta, Ohio at my grandparent's house for barbeque, brats, and burgers. It was nice to relax before NOAC picked up!"

MAX HIGA

YOWLUMNE LODGE, RIDGECREST, CA

"We were slowed down at the airport because a woman, not a Scout, had brought hunting equipment and knives. A little bit of irony there."

Ed Pease — A quiet, generous, servant leader

Alan Randall

When Ed Pease and the national Order of the Arrow committee set out in 1995 to create the Order of the Arrow High Adventure program (OAHA), they were not sure it would sell. “It was a way to plug a hole in the program,” Ed Pease said. The program was asking older teenage boys to go to Philmont where they would pay to complete projects and backpack. The idea for OAHA, which began with an 18-year old lodge chief from North Carolina, embodied our founders’ ideas that the Order of the Arrow is a thing of the outdoors and of the spirit.

At that time, Ed Pease was the chairman of the national OA committee. Looking back, he feels that the national committee set an amazing example by beginning OAHA and the program’s service to the high adventure bases. It also provided lodges with an example of how to give back to their own outdoor adventure programs. This has proven to be true with many sections and lodges that now have their own outdoor programs. “I feel the most significant thing within my term as national chairman of the Order of the Arrow was the beginning of the Order of the Arrow High Adventure programs,” Ed Pease says. “Throughout this success, the Order of the Arrow hasn’t stopped with this but merely used it as an example for future projects like ArrowCorps5, SummitCorps, and other OAHA programs.”

Ed Pease has been involved with the Order of the Arrow for a long time and has worn many hats. Ed’s legacy of servant leadership began by serving as lodge Secretary for Kickapoo Lodge, which was then followed by a term as

JIM GREEN WAS CAMP DIRECTOR FOR MANY YEARS AT CAMP KRIETENSTEIN, OUR COUNCIL CAMP, AND I WAS EITHER HIS BUSINESS MANAGER OR PROGRAM DIRECTOR THEN I SUCCEEDED HIM AS CAMP DIRECTOR IN 1972. lodge chief. A unique opportunity was presented to him: he was selected to be a member of the 1967 Report to the Nation Delegation. That experience provided him with the chance to meet congressmen, senators, Chief Scout Executive Joe Brunton, Jr., and President Lyndon B. Johnson. Not long after the Report to the Nation, Ed was elected to be area chief of Area 7-G and at the annual planning meeting, was appointed to deputy national conference chief of administration for the 1969 National Conference. At the planning meeting, Ed spent many long hours working cheerfully alongside his fellow Arrowmen to ensure that everything that needed to be done was completed in an efficient manner. While he was working those long days he spent many of them with the founders, E.

Urner Goodman and Carroll A. Edson. At the 1971 National Order of the Arrow Conference, Ed was honored with the Distinguished Service Award (DSA). Years later, Ed was selected to lead the Order of the Arrow as chairman of the national Order of the Arrow committee. On Tuesday, Ed Pease will receive the Legacy of Servant Leadership Lifetime Achievement Award for his dedication to the OA.

“Almost everyone will be intrigued by reading this article except Ed,” says Ray Capp, chairman of the national OA committee. “He has quietly, deftly, and happily served in a quiet, generous way in the finest traditions of servant leadership. He is the real deal and loved by all.”

Who has the most fun at NOAC?

The Activities, Recreation and Competition Committee (ARC) has the most fun at NOAC. The committee has organized lots of fun activities for you while you are here at NOAC. Even if registration for some events has passed, you can still go and watch. The Sandcastle Building Competition, located at Butterfield Volleyball court, promises to be an artist's paradise! Hopefully the words 'NOAC Idol' don't scare you away! Come on over to see what talent is in the Order of the Arrow. The Amazing Race is a mystery of sorts. "We don't want the Arrowmen to know what to expect from one station to another," comments Conference Vice Chief Taylor Blanc. The drive in movies will host priority seating for first time NOAC guests. "Our staff has chosen some great inspirational movies for this year's conference."

"Sadly, due to the rain, we had to postpone the NOAC 5K. It has been rescheduled for Thursday, same time and place." The NOAC 5K will be an easy 3.1 mile journey across the MSU campus. Join in and come to the MSU Auditorium on Thursday morning at 6:00 am.

Free swim is a wonderful opportunity for anyone that needs to cool off. Free swim is located at IM West and it is FREE!

Lodge ball is an event you do not want to miss. You never know when you might get an American's Funniest Video! You can catch that from 1:00 - 5:00 pm at the Jenison Field House. Basketball will be located at the IM Sports Complex East from 1:00 - 5:00 pm.

The greatest event will be the Grand Hodag on Thursday night. A smile crept across Taylor's face as he spoke, "Miss Michigan will even be there to sign sashes." For people that have not been to NOAC before, the Hodag is a big party. A live band and a DJ will be on location to provide the evening's entertainment. There will also be a live patch auction, all proceeds from the auction will go to the local council for campership funds for at risk youth.

Preston Marquis, master vice

Scouting is more than just a hobby for Preston Marquis, our national vice chief; it is a way of life. Marquis starting in Scouting at an early age and has stuck with it all this time. When asked what led him to the Scouting movement he replied, "I was impressed by the programs that were offered and wanted to become more familiar with outdoor and camping skills. I also thought the uniforms were cool."

When it came to involvement in the Order of the Arrow, it was more of an accident. He had been in the OA just about two months when his lodge elections were held. Marquis thought that he would run for a lodge office but figured someone would likely run against him and beat him. To his surprise he was elected and served as lodge chief of the Blue Heron Lodge for two years!

After his terms as lodge chief, he wanted to serve in a different position. At conclave he took advantage of the opportunity to run for section chief, and won. Later, during his second term as section chief, his peers elected him national vice chief.

Marquis is also involved in many activities outside of Scouting, including activities in his high school. Marquis plays the trumpet, plays tennis, and runs cross-country to help occupy his time when he's not busy with Scouting. He plans to continue his education at Georgetown University with a degree in international politics.

Marquis appreciates the example set by his role model, Bill Gates - particularly his commitment to public service. Marquis would like to challenge everyone to commit to public service inside and outside of Scouting.

"On a personal note, I'd consider many of my Scouting advisers excellent role models as well," said Preston. "I truly have been pleased with the privilege to work with some outstanding men and women over the past several years and I've learned much from each of them."

PRESTON IN THE OPENING SHOW

Conference safety reminders

Please respect quiet hours in the dorms. 11:00 p.m. is scheduled as contingent reflection time. East Lansing has a curfew from midnight to 6:00 a.m. for youth 17 and under.

We suggest that you lock your room door and never leave belongings unattended.

Please use the buddy system while at the conference.

For personal safety, please use crosswalks and obey pedestrian signals. Keep your eyes on the road when crossing and not on your smart phone.

NOAC bicyclists can get their bicycle registered at their dorm service desk.

Attend an AIA craft class to bring skills back to your lodge

Ned Lundquist

All Arrowmen are welcome to come and experience American Indian Activities (AIA) and experience crafts, something that will benefit all Arrowmen as they learn to better their lodge traditions. According to Chris L. of Gladstone, MI., a member of Ag-Im Lodge, "Arrowmen will learn skills they can take home to their lodges to help make these skills part of their lodge traditions."

Arrowmen can learn to sing, to dance, and to make authentic regalia while at AIA. Although there are some limitations on the number of materials and instructors, the AIA Crafts team welcomes all Arrowmen to the classes in Case, Wilson and Wonders Halls in the MSU South Complex during the week.

"Our approach is 'come on in,'" says Advisor Ron Bell, an AIA Crafts adviser from South Miami, FL., and O-Shot-Caw Lodge. "We won't turn anyone away."

"We've had people standing in the door and even looking in the window," adds Adviser Jim Front from Anderson, SC., a member of the Atta Kulla Kulla Lodge.

Arrowmen will learn basic and advanced skills in hands-on sessions, from making woven, beaded arrows to put on their uniform, to making roaches, ankle cuffs with bells, or even feather bustles. Some of the projects will require up to an astonishing 30 hours to complete. Others can be done in just a morning.

LaMarch is a student here at Michigan State University. He says that it is an eye-opening experience to see the sidewalks and classrooms that are normally crowded with students to be filled with Scouts donning uniforms and sashes.

He says that he is impressed with the very large staff here at NOAC to teach AIA crafts. "Our managers have a lot of experience working at previous NOACs and Indian Summer," says LaMarch. "All of our instructors are personally hand-picked for their expertise. We're all about honoring American Indian culture. To learn about American Indian regalia, there's no better place than NOAC."

The National Council of Chiefs

Alan Randall

The National Council of Chiefs (NCOC) is where the Lodge Key Three from each lodge around the country gathers for a one-of-a-kind leadership meeting. At this meeting, all of the most recent news from the national committee were revealed to the lodge leaders in attendance. These included the new strategic plan for the Order of the Arrow, Unit/Chapter/Lodge support, new awards for Arrowmen, the national endowment, goal setting for the lodges, and even updates on what the various task forces are working on.

One phrase that was emphasized was "tools, not rules." Each lodge was given a multitude of materials to distribute, including the new Chapter Operations Guide, new videos, the new strategic plan, new Order of the Arrow High Adventure promotions materials, and many more items to share among their brothers.

A new feature of this NCOC was a lodge leadership survey concerning membership requirement changes. The feedback from this survey will be considered when a proposal goes before the national committee. Towards the end of the meeting, a panel comprised of national committee members answered questions from lodge leaders. The NCOC concluded with the lodge leaders discussing their best practices for their lodge with the other leaders and see where they could improve upon what they are already doing.

When asked about the NCOC, Sam Levondoski, Lowwapneue Lodge Chief from the Northeastern Pennsylvania Council, said "It was a fun time and I learned great leadership techniques." With all these new programs being implemented it is a great time to be in the Order of the Arrow.

The legacy that lives in all of the Order's brothers

Invited distinguished Americans come and talk at NOAC

The NOAC Legacy Speaker Series began yesterday with a presentation by the Key Three of the Boy Scouts of America and Eleanor Clark, author of The Legacy of Lord Baden-Powell. The Legacy Series invites distinguished Americans to come and talk about the legacy they have

"Our theme is 'United we leave a legacy,'" says Josh Hone, conference vice chief of special events. "So we want to contextualize it in real people's lives. And we think the legacies that certain people have been able to lead in their own lives will provide unique insight to any Arrowmen."

The speakers for today will include distinguished Eagle Scouts including one who is an Olympic Gold Medalist.

NESA@NOAC celebrates 100 years of goal-setting and achievement

Ned Lundquist

Celebrating a unique centennial, Tuesday's show will celebrate 100 years of Eagle Scouts. Ethan Fowler, NESA@NOAC conference vice chief from Cowikey Lodge 224, says tonight's NESA show will celebrate Eagle Scouts and Scouting. "We all work toward goals in Scouting. The Eagle represents the highest goal." Ethan says that "Scouting can be the catalyst" for young people who set goals for themselves and which can lead to great achievements later in life.

While all Scouts must complete the same basic requirements to advance to the rank of Eagle, Scouts follow their own path to the top of the mountain on the trail to Eagle. The journey does not end at the top of the mountain. When they reach the top, they are able to see more mountains. Fowler says guests at the show will see that the "Trail to Eagle" is not so much about a Scout receiving his Eagle Award, "but what one can do with the knowledge gained on that journey." The show will showcase the spirit of the Eagle Scout, featuring speakers who will share their inspirational stories. "Our guests at the NESA@NOAC show will see people who have set goals and accomplished a lot," he says.

Many Eagles will be attending the NESA Anniversary Dinner on Friday which, Fowler says, will be a prestigious affair. He adds that the NESA@NOAC show will be fun, loud, and entertaining experience for all NOAC 2012 guests. "It's going to be a great celebration of Eagle Scouts."

Visions of the founder E. Urner Goodman

The new commemorative painting for the hundredth anniversary of the Order of the Arrow created by Joseph Csatari – the official artist of the Boy Scouts of America – was unveiled at last night's SRVNT-LDR 101 show. The painting, Visions of the Founder, is an art piece featuring a young E. Urner Goodman explaining to two Scouts what he envisions for the Order of the Arrow. This vision is of the things of the spirit – brotherhood, cheerfulness, and service – and is depicted in the painting's background. Prints of the painting are available in the OA Endowment and OA Museum trading posts.

also appears in Visions of the Founder.

Csatari has completed several paintings for the Order of the Arrow. In 1963, Vigil members of the Aquehongian Lodge commissioned Csatari to complete his first OA oil painting, The Higher Vision. Four years later another member of that lodge, Harold Cairney, commissioned Csatari to paint a new OA themed painting, The Ordeal. Cairney was able to replicate the feat of his lodge by baking and selling hundreds of pies. All of Csatari's original Order of the Arrow pieces can be found on display in the OA Museum.

Csatari was awarded the Red Arrow Award in 2004 in recognition of his contributions to the Order. In 2005, the BSA awarded him the Silver Buffalo Award.

Notes from conference management

A few quick notes to help us all have a better experience:

Please do not bring your water bottles to the dining hall.

Do not plug your computers into the Ethernet ports around campus. Use campus Wi-Fi or speak to the technology office if you need Ethernet connection.

Remember to always wear your wristbands.

Do not bunk the beds in your room.

Lodge profile: Ajapeu Lodge

One of the many lodges attending NOAC is Ajapeu Lodge, from Bucks County Council. Headquartered in historic Doylestown, PA, "Ajapeu" means "running buck"; the lodge totem is a buck, a common animal in the appropriately-named Bucks County.

Ajapeu Lodge was the first lodge to develop a lodge flap. Ajapeu's NOAC contingent is small but strong, with twelve total participants, representing a lodge that has received Quality Lodge for the last seven years in a row!

A promotional poster for the "All Arrowmen 5K Run". The text is arranged vertically: "All Arrowmen" at the top, followed by "5K Run" in large blue letters. Below that, the word "Rescheduled" is repeated three times in a faded, overlapping manner. The date and time are "Thursday August 2 6AM". At the bottom, it says "MSU Auditorium - Starting Point". On the right side, there is a silhouette of a runner in a Boy Scout uniform, holding a bow and arrow. The background is a gradient of red and orange.
